Your Journey

Applying to university

When starting your journey of applying to university, there are 3 key stages to consider;

EXPLORE, DECIDE AND APPLY.

In the EXPLORE phase, you should look to better understand the career path you have chosen and the role of a working professional in that field. This will always begin with doing your research and obtaining first-hand insight and experience that confirm you are making the right choice.

1

During the DECIDE phase, you start to consider your options when choosing a university to help you pursue your career. At this stage, you should be reviewing key factors that may influence your decision, such as the accreditation of the degree, the programme structure and the employment opportunities after graduation.

2

The final stage of the journey is to APPLY. There are several considerations that need to be taken into account when submitting your application to a university. To ensure you are giving yourself the best chance of success with your application, you need to consider the application process as a whole, including but not limited to; your Personal Statement, Admissions Interviews, relevant experience and supporting documents.
